

421

CONSTANTIUS III

In West.

421 A8

(Dottis) Barbarian horsemen swept down from the north and overran the plains nearby
to Venice, Italy.

Legend - Local people retreated to the lagoons during this invasion and founded the city on the islands of Rialto - the present location of Venice (ver.)

around 4000 people moved into the lagoon and settled on marginal mudflats and islands
later floating about diving under pile down with the sediment forming low foundations, & water on - According to records on - existing church with in 101 M of the houses

Mar 25, 421

At noon the City of Venice was founded

GALIA PLACIDIA persuaded Emperor Honorius to make Constantius^{III} co-emperor, but Constantius^{III} died a few months after his accession.
He was father of Valentinian

d. 421

CONSTANTIUS II Roman emperor of the West in 421.

In 411 as general of HONORIUS, he defeated GERONTIUS and Constantine (another general). Thereafter, he was virtual ruler of the West. He aspired to the hand of HONORIUS's sister GALLA PLACIDIA, he waged with his rival ATAULF, the Visigothic King, and drove him from Gaul into Spain shortly after ATAULF's marriage to Alla Ploids (414)

C 421

Under a new and vigorous King GAISERIC, the VISIGOTHS crossed the Strait of Gibraltar to Africa. There baseing pushed eastward and overpowered the resistance of the Roman governor.

421

Constantinus III (in West)